INDIA-BRUNEI BILATERAL RELATIONS

Political Relations

Diplomatic relations between India and Brunei were established on 10 May 1984. Prior to the establishment of Resident Mission in Brunei, India's Mission in Kuala Lumpur was concurrently accredited to Brunei. India set up its High Commission in Brunei on 18 May 1993. Brunei set up its resident High Commission in India on 12 August 1992 headed by an Acting High Commissioner. Prior to that, Brunei's High Commissioner in Malaysia, was concurrently accredited to India. The main elements binding the two countries are: (i) Export of crude oil by Brunei to India and its contribution to India's energy security; (ii) Brunei's role as an important ASEAN Member Country; and (iii) Brunei has an 10,000-strong Indian community.

Brunei and India have close relations based on their strong traditional and cultural links and common membership of UN, NAM, Commonwealth, ASEAN etc., Among the component parts of the Brunei Government and the royal family, the Sultan has been the strongest votary of close relations with India and has supported and ensured the welfare of the Indian community in Brunei. Brunei and India enjoy a high degree of commonality in their perceptions of major international issues. Brunei has been supportive of India's earlier 'Look East Policy' and also the present 'Act East Policy' and in expansion and deepening of cooperation with ASEAN. Brunei took over as Country Coordinator for India in ASEAN from July 2012 for three years till June 2015 and played an important role in bringing India closer to ASEAN during its tenure. Brunei has been supportive of the candidature of India and its nominees to elections to various International Organisations.
